Lesser Prairie Chicken could restrict farming, ranching
Seward joins block of countries opposing federal listing of Lesser Prairie Chicken

By ROBERT PRICE
• Leader & Times

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is reducing whether to list the Lesser Prairie Chicken as a threatened species in an ex-decision, whether to encourage regional programs to protect the LPC.
A decision on the listing of the LPC is due in the fall of 2013, and experts say that Alexis will have a profound effect on counties and rural ecology, cooperatives and the country.
For counties in LPC, living would impose additional federal considerations for agriculture, ranching, and industrial activities within their jurisdiction.
"A dramatic land fire up was everywhere in the country," said Seward Cooper

Former LHS grad talks 'success' with students
Liberal High School graduate Patricia Rodriguez-Beer returns home to give students insights on the modern corporate world

By CHRIS ENGHOLSON
• Leader & Times

Patricia Rodriguez-Beer graduated from Liberal High School in the Class of 2001. She then went to Kansas Wesleyan University in Salina, Kansas, and Seward County Community College/Area Technical School in 2002.
She continued her education at Kansas State University earning a bachelor's degree in agricultural business. Rocky attached to Kansas administration.
Now, she is a corporate working for Cargill Foods and has been called the Jewel of Cargill.
All day Friday Patricia spoke to nearly 300 seasons LHS students. Leader Cargill Foods Beer Leadership was a fun-gathering Rodriguez-Beer has been paid with several different Cargill-Foods Beer Leadership, LHS Entrepreneurship and FCCLA.
Rodriguez-Beer started a lot of the Cargill Foods Beer Leadership. Not that it was necessarily that your gas, the small seasons could go to college, they just have to want it bad enough.
She started saving for college early, but putting a few dollars every few college years and pick with up last and can give one that extra money that they need.
Education is just one of the keys she pointed out that are important to career building.
Rodriguez-Beer was also a supervisor with teachers and others in case of the ways that allowed her to get her master's degree.
Knowing a department head allowed her to be able to get a job at the school while working on her masters. She pointed out that
