County approves new upgrades at fairgrounds
The Board of Supervisors has approved a $1.5 million project to upgrade the fairgrounds in Liberal, California. The project will include the construction of a new arena, the renovation of existing buildings, and the installation of new lighting and security systems. The project is expected to be completed by the end of 2014. The Board of Supervisors also approved a new contract for the fairgrounds' maintenance and operations. The new contract will be for a period of five years and will include the maintenance of the arena, the renovation of existing buildings, and the installation of new lighting and security systems. The project is expected to be completed by the end of 2014.

BEWARE Triceratops AHEAD
A triceratops is a large, three-horned dinosaur that lived during the late Triassic and early Jurassic periods. It is one of the most recognizable dinosaurs and is often depicted in popular culture. The word "triceratops" comes from the Greek words "tri" (three) and "ceratops" (horned face). The triceratops is a herbivore and is known for its large, bony frill and three horns. It is believed to have lived in North America and is one of the most common dinosaurs found in the fossil record.
