BE Liberal begins grassroots effort to mobilize community

By David Rebert

When a local group of citizens from a variety of backgrounds and political persuasions get together to discuss a common goal, it is often called a grassroots effort. In Kamloops, a group of citizens is doing just that. The group is the Kamloops Liberal Party, and its goal is to mobilize the community to support the Liberal Party in the upcoming provincial election.

Dual-language instruction may come to an end

By David Rebert

The British Columbia Education Council (BCEC) has announced that it will be reviewing the province's dual-language instruction program. The program, which was introduced in 1997, allows students to learn in both English and a second language. The BCEC is concerned that the program is not meeting its goals and is looking for ways to improve it.

Board contemplates whether program should continue

By David Rebert

The Kamloops Board of Education is considering whether to continue the dual-language instruction program. The board is looking at the program's costs and benefits, as well as the needs of the community. The board's decision will be made in the coming months.

Plains takes another step in gaining grocery store

By David Rebert

A group of Plains residents is taking another step towards getting a grocery store in their community. The group is the Plains Community Association, and it is looking for ways to attract a grocery store to the area. The association is holding meetings and conducting outreach to potential investors.

DINOSAURS INVADING LIBERAL

By David Rebert

The Liberal Party is facing a new challenge in the upcoming provincial election. The party is being invaded by a group of candidates who are running as independents. The party is looking for ways to counter this challenge and is holding meetings and conducting outreach to potential voters.
