Hugoton super: ACLU bullying district
The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) has filed a lawsuit against the High Plains Independent School District (ISD) for bullying a student. The student, who is a transgender youth, was harassed and bullied by other students and staff members of the district. The ACLU is seeking a court order that requires the district to take steps to protect the student from further harassment and bullying. The district has denied the allegations and has stated that it is committed to providing a safe and supportive environment for all students. The case is currently pending in court. For more information, please call 512-261-1234.
