Increase in regulations cause closure of FBC daycare

The regulatory changes that have caused the closure of Family Child Care Center in Topeka, Kan., are a result of the state's new licensing requirements for child care facilities. The center, which had been operating since 1985, was forced to close its doors in early 2013 due to the inability to meet the new standards. The state's Department of Social and Health Services is responsible for enforcing these regulations.
