Liberal bids farewell to Dr. Lance Stout

Liberal nation stumbles on local artifact

The women stitched each star by hand, piecing printed diamonds into an orderly geometric pattern. Better colors, anchored the differently hand-drawn, some printed, some intense. Finally they added their names. Yet as all embroidered in color.

It was a labor of love, a labor of time, a labor of love. The women of the Liberal Quilt Guild, a group of about 20 women, spent the last few weeks of their lives piecing together a quilt that would honor Dr. Lance Stout, a local physician who passed away in 2012.

The quilt, which is now on display at the Liberal Public Library, is a beautiful work of art. It features a central panel with a portrait of Dr. Stout, surrounded by a border of stars and stripes. The stars are made of small pieces of fabric, each with a name written on it. The stripes are made of larger pieces of fabric, some of which are printed with patterns.

The quilt is a testament to the community's love for Dr. Stout and a beautiful work of art. It is a labor of love, a labor of time, a labor of love.
