MCADD a silent killer for many

A 14-year-old boy, who looks like the average kid, has a secret. He has a rare genetic disorder called MCADD (medium-chain acyl-CoA dehydrogenase deficiency). It's a silent killer that can cause sudden death, especially during illness or exercise. The boy's parents, Colleen and Morgan, knew that only knew after his death, he was a perfect example of a silent killer.

Large font size on the front of the LAT. Colleen and Morgan know that only knew after his death, he was a perfect example of a silent killer.
