Routine blood test saved baby's life

MCADD a silent killer for many

A 14-year-old boy, who has been diagnosed with MCADD, a rare genetic disorder, is now healthy and thriving. The boy, who was born with the condition, was diagnosed at the age of 14 after a routine blood test. The condition is a type of fatty acid oxidation disorder that can be fatal if not diagnosed and treated. The boy's parents, who were unaware of the condition, were told by a doctor that the boy had a rare genetic disorder.
