City bids farewell to public works director Joe Sealey

By MICHAEL COLEMAN
The city of Liberal, Kansas, is bidding farewell to a public works director who has served the community for over 20 years. Joe Sealey, 62, has been a dedicated public servant, overseeing the city's infrastructure and public works department. He has been instrumental in the city's growth and development, and his departure is a significant loss to the community. The city will miss his leadership and expertise, but wishes him the best in his future endeavors.

New generation of trap shooters step up and Take aim

At the Liberal Shooting Sports Club, a new generation of trap shooters is stepping up to the challenge. These young athletes are honing their skills and competing at a high level. The club provides a supportive environment for these young shooters, offering coaching and resources to help them succeed. The sport of trap shooting is a challenging and rewarding activity that requires precision, focus, and a deep understanding of the sport.
