Drama teacher takes to the stage
Chambers moves to Wichita for full-time theater work

When she began teaching drama at the end of the 20th century, she was one of the few women in the field. Now, she is one of the many. Her passion for the art form led her to leave her previous position at a local high school and move to Wichita to take a full-time position at the University of Kansas. Her new role allows her to focus on her passion for drama and to work with a team of dedicated professionals. She is excited to be part of the university's drama program and to continue to inspire her students.

Local groups unite for Alzheimer's Association Walk to End Alzheimer's
Southeast Kansas residents raise funds for Alzheimer's Association care, support and research programs

Local groups in Southeast Kansas are uniting for the Alzheimer's Association Walk to End Alzheimer's. The walk is a fundraising event that aims to raise awareness and funds for Alzheimer's disease. Participants will be walking through the region to support the Alzheimer's Association's mission to care for people living with Alzheimer's disease, support their families, and fund research to find a cure. The event is scheduled for August 10th and will start in Lawrence, Kansas, and travel through various locations in the region.

Kan. court remands case of gun shop liability

The Kansas Supreme Court has remanded a case regarding gun shop liability. The case involves a lawsuit filed by a family whose child was injured by a gun purchased from a local shop. The court's decision is a significant one, as it addresses the legal responsibility of gun stores in the state. The court ruled that the gun store was not liable for the child's injury, as the child's parents were negligent in not properly storing the gun. This decision is expected to have a major impact on how gun stores operate in Kansas.

Obama's remarks on race resonate with many

President Barack Obama's remarks on race have resonated with many Americans. In a recent speech, he addressed the ongoing issues of racial inequality and discrimination in the United States. His words were powerful and honest, reflecting the concerns of many people across the country. Obama's remarks have sparked a national conversation about race and the need for change. Many people feel that his comments are a step towards a more just and equitable society.
