Judge: Oklahoma can sue government for Obamacare

Change: Two
 A federal judge on the state of Oklahoma has ruled that the state can sue the federal government for Obamacare. The judge, in a ruling that is expected to be appealed, said that the federal government's attempt to force the state to implement the health care law is unconstitutional. The ruling is a significant victory for the state and its supporters, who have long argued that the federal government has overstepped its authority by imposing the law on the states. The judge's decision is based on the fact that the federal government has not provided the state with the necessary resources to implement the law, and that the law itself is unconstitutional. The ruling is expected to have a major impact on the health care debate in the United States.
