Parent questions why board not enforcing policy
By NICKI CLONING
COLUMBIANA
A local parent, Melissa Robinson, says she is questioning the board of directors of the Columbia Area Public Schools for not enforcing a policy that requires parents to provide proof of insurance for their children. Robinson says she has been contacted by several other parents who are also questioning the board's actions. She says she is not alone in her concerns and that she is looking for other parents who are also questioning the board's actions.
