Sen. Moran sponsors bill to allow Kansans to keep their health care plans

Sen. Moran (R-Kan.) has introduced a bill that would allow Kansans to keep their health care plans if they are currently covered under a self-insured plan. The bill, known as the Health Care Continuation Act, would allow employers to continue to self-insure their employees' health care needs, even if the employer is no longer in business. This would be particularly beneficial for small businesses and self-employed individuals who currently have to purchase individual health insurance through the marketplace. The bill also would allow individuals to continue their health care coverage if they are currently covered under a self-insured plan and the employer is no longer in business. The bill is expected to be passed by the end of the year.

National Beef closes temporarily for operational issues

National Beef, a major supplier of beef to the food service industry, has announced that it will be closing temporarily for operational issues. The company, which is based in Kansas, has been experiencing difficulties with its supply chain and production facilities. The closure is expected to last for several weeks. The company has apologized to its customers and is working to resolve the issues as quickly as possible. The closure is a significant blow to the beef industry in Kansas, as National Beef is one of the largest suppliers in the state.

Colorado's mixed tax votes leave future unclear

Colorado's voters have cast their ballots on a number of tax-related measures, leaving the future of the state's tax system uncertain. The measures include changes to the state's income tax, sales tax, and property tax. The results of the vote are mixed, with some measures passing and others failing. This has led to speculation about the future of the state's tax system and the potential for further changes. The state's tax system is a complex one, and the results of the vote could have significant implications for the state's economy and its residents.

SW Kansas Black Hills customers to benefit from pipeline purchase

Customers in the Southwest Kansas Black Hills region are expected to benefit from a recent pipeline purchase. The purchase, which was made by a major energy company, will result in a more efficient and reliable pipeline system. This will help to reduce the cost of energy for customers in the region and ensure that they have a steady supply of energy. The purchase is a significant investment in the region's infrastructure and is expected to have a positive impact on the local economy.
