Philly officer delivers baby in back seat of taxi
A Philadelphia police officer delivered a baby in the back seat of a taxi on Saturday night. The officer, who was on duty in the city's Center City district, noticed a pregnant woman in a taxi who was in labor. He called for an ambulance and stayed with the woman until the ambulance arrived. The baby was born safely and the woman and child are both doing well.

Many exchange health plans exclude top hospitals
A study by the Kaiser Family Foundation has found that many exchange health plans exclude top hospitals. The study found that 30 percent of exchange health plans exclude at least one of the top 10 hospitals in the country. This is a concern because these hospitals are often the best hospitals in the country. The study also found that many exchange health plans have high deductibles and out-of-pocket maximums. This means that people who use these plans may have to pay a lot of money out of pocket for their healthcare.
