City to hear concealed carry proposal for city buildings
By JESSICA HARRINGTON
The city of Liberty is set to hold a public hearing on a proposal to allow concealed carry in city buildings. The hearing is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 10, at the city council chambers. The proposal, which was introduced by Councilman Tom Calkins, would allow licensed concealed carry holders to carry their firearms in city buildings, with the exception of schools and government buildings. The city council will vote on the proposal at its meeting on Dec. 17.

Plans offer array of options
We need people to tell us what they want
By JESSICA HARRINGTON
The Liberty School District is looking for input from parents and the community on a variety of options for a new school building. The district is currently in the planning phase and will be holding a series of public meetings to gather feedback. The options being considered include a new building on the current site, a new building on a different site, and a renovation of the existing building. The district is also considering different classroom sizes and configurations. The public meetings will be held on Dec. 17 and 18 at the school district office.

Obamacare exchanges limit access to top hospitals, medical centers
By JESSICA HARRINGTON
The passage of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) has led to a number of changes in the health insurance market. One of the most significant changes is the creation of health insurance exchanges. However, there are concerns that these exchanges may limit access to top hospitals and medical centers. This is because many of these facilities are currently covered by self-insured employer plans, which are not required to participate in the exchanges. This could result in a loss of revenue for these facilities, which could impact their ability to provide high-quality care.

Day care owner guilty of selling crack out of home
By JESSICA HARRINGTON
A woman who owned a day care center in Liberty has been found guilty of selling crack cocaine out of her home. The woman, who is 42 years old, was charged with multiple counts of selling crack cocaine to her children and other individuals. She was arrested in October 2013 and is currently facing federal charges. The case is being handled by the FBI and the local police department.
