County looks to spend $100K to stop concealed carry in 2 buildings

Commission may request 4-year exemption from concealed carry law before spending on security

BY ROBERT WEST

Last week, the Liberal City Commission considered which of the city buildings to exempt from actual firearms carry law allowing concealed carry weapons.

Tonight, the Seward County Commission will consider which county buildings to exempt from the law and which indicates the county can exempt buildings that have adequate security measures in place or a plan in place to provide adequate entrances from the Kansas Attorney General.

The information Seward County has been put in the county budget to put security measures in the courthouse, such as installing locked doors, and put a plan in place to provide adequate security measures. The information said.

This plan allowed for county commissioners to consider funding of budget planning sessions where they could decide if they wish to put in place adequate security measures. The information said.

This came before the announcement of the concealed carry law, which allows the attorney general's office to submit the rules to the attorney general for an extension for the courthouse.

Seward County District court clerk, county commissioners, county administrator Ingrid Worden, and sheriff Bill Griffith all met in an open work session to review the status of all county buildings and to learn
