Christmas of '67

The older I get, the more ordinary Christmas seems. Maybe that's what it means to grow up — the glitter and the sense of something that was once magical and wild slowly fades. Or maybe it's because on Christmas will ever reach the highs and lows of the one I survived the year I turned 13.

That was the Christmas my dad got for me. My mom had just died and I was the only one left. I was 13 and I was alone. I was in a room with a bed and a desk and a chair. I was in a room with a window and a door. I was in a room with a light and a fan. I was in a room with a clock and a mirror. I was in a room with a door and a window. I was in a room with a light and a fan. I was in a room with a clock and a mirror.
