Crowds relive Washington's 1776 river crossing

A holiday along the Missouri River and its tributaries has become a popular way to relive the historic crossing of the river by George Washington's Continental Army in 1776. The reenactment, which takes place on the Missouri River, is a popular attraction for tourists and locals alike. The event is held annually in the town of Hannibal, Mo., and is a major draw for the area.

Kansas growers focus on cotton's potential

It's not just the cotton that's in the ground, but the potential for the crop. Kansas growers are focusing on the potential of cotton as a major crop. They are investing in new technology and equipment to improve their cotton production. They are also looking for ways to market their cotton more effectively. They are also looking for ways to improve the quality of their cotton. They are also looking for ways to reduce the risk of crop failure. They are also looking for ways to increase their profits. They are also looking for ways to improve the sustainability of their operations.
