Crowds relive Washington's 1776 river crossing

A holiday along the Potomac River on any day would be a good thing. But on Dec. 26, it's a special day for many people as they gather to witness a historical reenactment of the crossing of the river by George Washington's Continental Army in 1776. The reenactment is held annually on the 26th of December, and is one of the most popular events in the area. The reenactment is held on the banks of the river, and is a great way to experience the history of the area.
