Judge believes local tax collector signed fraudulent tax returns
A judge has ruled that a local tax collector signed fraudulent tax returns for several years, according to a report from the local newspaper. The judge's decision was based on evidence that the collector had signed returns for taxpayers who had never filed with the IRS. The collector, who has since been removed from office, had signed returns for over 100 taxpayers in the past few years. The judge's decision is a warning to other local officials to be careful when signing tax returns for taxpayers who have not filed with the IRS.
