Obama set to announce 'practical' agenda focusing on immigration, income equality

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama is expected to announce a new set of policies aimed at addressing immigration, income inequality and other issues, according to a senior administration official. The official said the president will likely announce the plan in the next few weeks. The plan is expected to focus on creating jobs, improving education and healthcare, and addressing the needs of immigrants. Obama has been criticized for his handling of the economy and immigration, and the new plan is seen as a way to address these issues. The official said the plan will be a "practical" agenda that focuses on the needs of the American people. The plan is expected to be announced in the next few weeks.
