Woody Allen's allies cast doubt on sexual abuse claims

Woody Allen's allies cast doubt on sexual abuse claims

NEW YORK (AP) — Woody Allen's allies on Monday cast doubt on the sexual abuse claims of a woman who says she was sexually abused by the filmmaker in the 1970s.

The woman, who is now 40, says she was sexually abused by Allen when she was 13 years old. She says she was sexually abused by Allen for several years, from 1972 to 1977.

Allen's allies, including his lawyer and several friends, say the woman's claims are unfounded. They say she is a liar and that she is trying to ruin Allen's reputation.

Allen has denied the claims since they first surfaced in 1992. He has said that he and the woman had a consensual relationship when she was 17 years old.

The woman's claims have caused a major scandal for Allen, who is one of the most successful filmmakers in the world. He has won several Academy Awards and has a net worth of over $1 billion.

The woman's claims have also caused a major scandal for the film industry. Many people are questioning the credibility of the woman's claims and the integrity of the film industry.

Nothing controversial in Super Bowl ads

Nothing controversial in Super Bowl ads

NEW YORK (AP) — Many Super Bowl ads are so tame, they could be shown on a children's television channel, critics say.

The Super Bowl is the most-watched television event in the United States, and it is known for its commercial breaks. Many of these commercials are highly creative and entertaining.

- A commercial for Budweiser featuring a dog named Bud.
- A commercial for McDonald's featuring a dog named McDog.
- A commercial for Coca-Cola featuring a dog named Coke.

The ads are generally well-received and do not cause any controversy. They are seen as a fun and entertaining part of the Super Bowl experience.
