Natural gas offers value as propane prices soar
Propane prices have soared in recent months, and many consumers are turning to natural gas as a more affordable alternative. Natural gas is a cleaner-burning fuel that is also more readily available in many areas. However, natural gas prices have also risen in some areas, and consumers should compare prices before switching. Natural gas is typically sold by the pound, while propane is sold by the gallon. The price of natural gas is currently around $1.50 per gallon, while propane is around $2.50 per gallon. This means that natural gas is about 40% cheaper than propane. However, natural gas is not as portable as propane, and it is not as easy to store. Consumers should consider these factors when deciding which fuel to use.
