Washington girl, 11, shoots and kills cougar tracking her brother
A 11-year-old girl from Washington state has become a national hero after she shot and killed a cougar that was attacking her brother. The incident occurred on a hunting trip in the Cascade Mountains. The girl, who is a member of the local hunting club, was with her brother and a group of friends. When the cougar attacked her brother, she immediately drew her bow and fired, killing the animal. The incident has received widespread media attention and has inspired many people to take action to protect wildlife.

California couple in $10M gold find may owe govt about half, report says
The San Francisco Chronicle reports that the find is a notable event under a 1980 federal court ruling that holds a "discovery" is taxable the year it was discovered. The couple, who were on a gold mining trip in California, discovered a large amount of gold in a remote area. The find is estimated to be worth about $10 million. However, the couple may have to pay about half of that amount to the government. The report says that the couple is currently negotiating with the government over the tax implications of the find.
