Prevention is firefighters' top priority
By Tom Ichniowski
A fire that killed a 10-year-old boy in a home in Lakewood on Monday night was the latest in a series of residential fires that have killed at least 10 people in the past year, according to firefighters. The cause of the fire was not yet known, but firefighters say it was a preventable fire. The fire broke out at about 10:30 p.m. at a home on Lakewood Road. The fire spread quickly, and firefighters arrived to find the home filled with smoke. The boy was found in the basement. Firefighters were able to extinguish the fire, but the damage was significant. The fire was the second in a series of residential fires in the area. Firefighters say that many of these fires are preventable. They say that many people do not have working smoke detectors, and many do not have fire extinguishers. They also say that many people do not have fire escape plans. Firefighters say that they would like to see more people take these steps to prevent fires. They say that they would like to see more people have working smoke detectors, and they would like to see more people have fire extinguishers. They also say that they would like to see more people have fire escape plans.
