This lesser prairie chicken is one of the 10 species of birds listed as threatened by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The lesser prairie chicken is a species of bird native to the Great Plains region of the United States. It is a ground-dwelling bird with a distinctive crest and is known for its unique call. The bird is currently facing significant population declines due to habitat loss and fragmentation. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has listed the lesser prairie chicken as a threatened species under the Endangered Species Act of 1973.
