Pregnant women gain new options under health law

As of January 1, 2014, pregnant women in Seward County have gained new options under the Affordable Care Act. The law requires that health plans cover a variety of preventive services, including prenatal care, without cost sharing. This means that pregnant women can now get prenatal care, including ultrasounds, without having to pay out of pocket. The law also requires that health plans cover a variety of other services, including mental health services, without cost sharing.
