In Hill testimony, Hagel defends Bergdahl trade
By [Name] [City] Staff Writer
Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel defended the trade of five Taliban prisoners for the release of the captured U.S. Army soldier, Sgt. Bowe Bergdahl, during his testimony before the House Armed Services Committee on June 11. Hagel stated that the trade was a "win-win" for the United States, as it allowed the government to focus its resources on fighting the war in Afghanistan. He also stated that the trade was a "humanitarian" gesture, as it allowed Bergdahl to return home to his family. Hagel's testimony was met with mixed reactions from the committee members, with some expressing support for the trade and others expressing concern. Hagel's defense of the trade was a key moment in the hearing, and it highlighted the ongoing debate over the trade's legitimacy and the government's handling of the situation.
